Visa & Residence Permit

1) VISA

Visa Type	Visa Explanation	Material Required
X1 Visa	study period of more than 6 months	Admission Notice; JW202 Form
X2 Visa	study period of 6 months or less	Admission Notice; JW202 Form (if applicable)
L Visa	Tourist visa	No documents issued by the university is required

● Extra documents might be furnished upon the authority's request

X1 visa

Students with an X1 visa who plan to stay in China for more than half a year must obtain the Residence Permit within 30 days of entry in China. Those who exceed this time limit are considered illegal residents. A physical examination is required when applying for the Residence Permit.

X2 visa

Students with an X2 visa are not required to hold a residence permit. "Intended days of stay" in the visa decides their days of stay in China.

L visa

Students who come to China with an L visa must obtain an X visa before applying for their residence permit, or else they can only stay in China only within the valid period designated in their L visa.

- According to China's laws, international students, when going out of campus, must carry passports and other credentials to prove their legal stay in China.

2) RESIDENCE PERMIT

International students have to apply the Residence Permits within 30 days after entering China and finishing their registrations.

For students who live on campus or hotel, the university or the hotel will issue you a temporary residence permit, and the university will provide help for these students to get the residence permit.

For students who rent house outside campus, they should go to the Public Bureau within 24 hours after enter China. And the public bureau will give details about the residence permit processing.
